FESTIVAL

BY BOB McKETA

Director, Commercial Sponsorship

One of the major benefits of being stationed in Japan, and particularly at Camp Zama, is the opportunity to view, and sometimes participate in, a variety of Japanese cultural activities.

The April Cherry Blossom Festival provided insight into some of the ancient traditional activities such as the Japanese Tea Ceremony, Taiko drums, and a beautiful display of Ikebana (flower arranging). Throughout the year, there are also cultural exchange programs and activities coordinated by the Garrison Community Relations Office such as rice planting in one of the local communities. Now, it's Bon Odori season, and for newcomers, a little history of how Bon Odori first started at Camp Zama, and also what the Bon Festival means to the Japanese.

The idea to hold a Bon Odori Festival on the installation developed in 1959 when some ladies from Zama City gave a dance performance on post. At that time, both the Zama City mayor and the Commanding General thought it would be a good way to promote friendship among the communities.

Since the initial dance in 1959, it has become a custom for several Japanese ladies to come on post to give community members Bon Dance lessons before the event. As a result, American Bon Dancers, clad in "yukatas" (a light cotton summer kimono), have increased in number, and their dancing has been a pleasant surprise to the Japanese.

Bon dance lessons are currently being held at the Community Cultural Center, and although they started on 26 July, you still have an opportunity to participate in the remaining two lessons on 2 and 4 August. The sessions are held 1730-1930. For further Bon dance information, phone 263-5455.

Whether you are a Soldier, Department of the Army civilian, or a family member, your participation in this traditional celebration will enhance your understanding of Japan and give you an opportunity to meet and make new friends.

What is the Bon Odori Festival? Bon means the "Lantern Festival" or "Festival of the Dead", and it is usually held for a period of three or four days during the summer season. Bon Odori Festivals are held throughout Japan in memory of the dead, who, according to Buddhist belief, revisit the earth during this period. Lanterns are usually lit for souls of the dead to help them find their way.

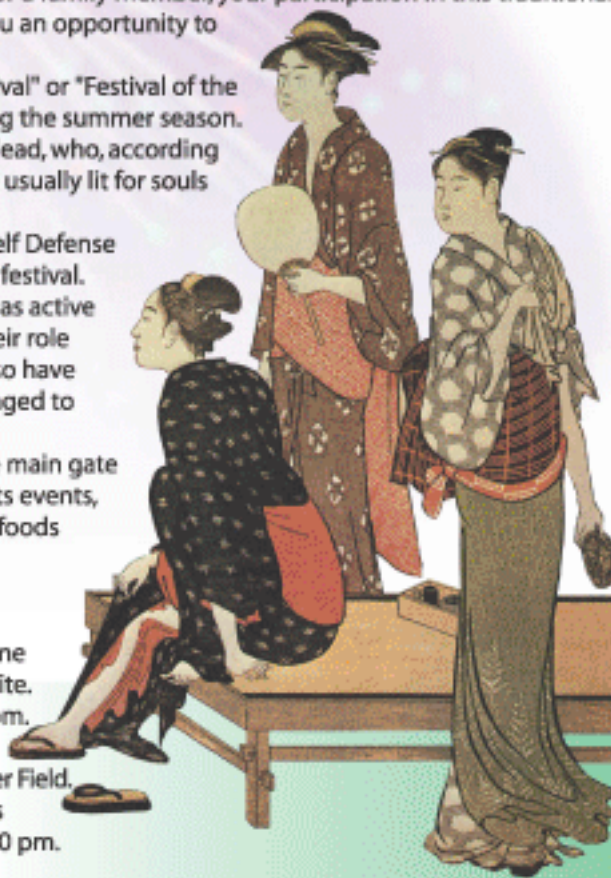

Camp Zama is fortunate to partner with the Japan Ground Self Defense Force, 4th Engineer Group, to mutually assist in the conduct of the festival. Over the years, they have provided strong support and leadership as active participants at the major festivals, and this year have expanded their role to jointly partner with Camp Zama to host the festival. They will also have several canopies throughout the festival area, and you are encouraged to stop by and greet them.

Operational hours for the festival are 1100-9:30 pm (both the main gate and gate # 4 open at 1030 pm). There will be youth and adult sports events, games and rides for youth, and booths offering a variety of ethnic foods to include Mexican, Indian, Korean, Italian, Bali, Vietnamese, plus delicious crepes, ice cream and rotisserie chicken.

There will be a Taiko drum concert starting at 1 pm with a performance by the Aun Taiko Group. The concert will be held in one of the large open grass areas centrally located within the Festival site. They will be followed by the Hiratsuka Tanabata Taiko Group at 4 pm. The Sagami Ryuo Taiko Group will provide the music for the Bon dancing which begins at 6:30 pm at the Bon tower located on Rambler Field.

Activities for the festival conclude with a 30-minute fireworks display starting at 8:30 pm. The installation will begin to clear at 9:30 pm.

Plan to be a part of the Obon experience.....
